Financial Prospects.

The San Francisco Chronicle says the opening of the Nevada Bank is now fixed for Monday, October 4th by which time the building will be ready for occupancy and the new clerks drilled in their duties. Louis McLane will be its manager, and N. K. Masten, late of the First National Gold Bank, has accepted the position of cashier. The new bank is much needed, opens under the most favorable auspices, and will undoubtedly take at once a first place among the financial institutions of the Pacific Coast.

The affairs of the Bank of California are progressing in a satisfactory manner; already $7,500,000 has been subscribed to the guarantee fund, and the resumption of business is now only a question of a few days time. Its opening may take place next Monday, or may be deferred until a week from that time. The annual meeting of stockholders will be held on Tuesday, October 5th, at which a statement of its condition and affairs will be presented to them. As the majority of all the stock is now in the hands of the Syndicate, the re-election of the present Board of Directors is a foregone conclusion.

The National Gold and Trust Company are doing business as before the suspension. Having succeeded in furnishing coin for all their own gold notes presented for redemption, they now offer to do the same with the notes of any other National Gold Bank in the State.

The "little" Stock Board continues to do an increasing business, while the members of the two other Boards are setting up their old business preparatory to re-opening. Those best acquainted with the developments in the mines, and most familiar with the state of the stock market predict a lively time when operations are resumed. They say the mines never looked better, and at no time was there more confidence in their stability than at present. There is more money accumulated in San Francisco now than at any other period within the past year, and therefore prices are likely to be firm and transactions large.

A Democratic Bolt Foreseen.

The New York Herald of Friday morning editorially discusses the political situation at some length and the possibility of the break-up of political parties. It considers the present fight between inflation and anti-inflation Democrats as tending to disrupt that party. Both wings of the Democracy will make a resolute struggle to control the National Convention, and the defeated wing is likely to bolt unless the fall election insures a hard money victory within the party lines. Gov. Tilden's supporters wish for a new political organization on the Syracuse platform of hard money and reform. The Herald says that the common impression is that the inflationists will get control of the National Convention and control of the Democratic party. Gen. Grant will be the inevitable candidate of the Republicans on a hard money platform. Tilden calculates on the support of Republicans opposed to Grant for a third term. The time is ripe for a reorganization of political parties, if these men are bold enough to attempt, and sagacious enough to accomplish it. Both existing parties have outlived the issues upon which they were founded; both parties are full of internal dissension. The Herald favors the formation of a new party on living issues.

It is stated that Carl Schurz has returned to his first love, and will take the stump in Ohio for the Republican ticket. His excuse is the financial issue. He says that "no greater disaster could befall the country than the success of the inflation enthusiasts," and believing this he could not remain neutral or silent.

The mines listed at the San Francisco Stock Board have paid $27,000,000 more to stockholders than they have collected from them.

The proprietors of the San Francisco Bulletin and Call are intensely riled, and are going to make it warm for Granny Alta, in the shape of a $250,000 libel suit. The papers, which are voluminous, were filed on the 24th and they contain the whole business. These state that the aggrieved plaintiffs have never published any false news, unjust or untrue comments concerning the Bank of California or its management, and never conspired to injure the bank or impair its credit, or ever endeavored to produce a financial panic in this State or any other place, or to increase one when existing, for the purpose of speculation in stocks, or for any other purpose; but that the defendants—proprietors of the Alta—knowing the above facts, but envying the good name of plaintiffs, and their success as journalists, have charged them with the above-mentioned acts in an article published in the Alta of the 21st instant, which article is quoted as part of the complaint. Interesting developments are expected to come out of this trial.

NEVADA MINING NEWS.

(From the Old Hill News of Thursday, California.)

The work on the 1550-foot level is confined for the present to sinking the winze in the ore vein below crosscut No. 3. This winze is now down 60 feet, the bottom still in one of the finest possible character. This development is of no little importance, as it is near the center of the mine and proves the extent of the rich ore downward, or at least the distance of another level, making a total height and depth of 200 feet of solid ore now prospected the full length of the claim on the 1500-foot level and almost the entire length on the 1400 and 1600-foot levels, opening a mine of such vast proportions that it is only bewildering to attempt to estimate its actual value. The erection of both the batteries and the amalgamating portion of the California mill are rapidly approaching completion; and if no unforeseen circumstances prevent, both will be ready to start into full operation by the first of November next.

Savage.

Sinking the main incline is making good progress. Sinking the south winze below the 2200-foot level is also making rapid headway. No valuable changes to report of the prospecting drifts on the 2100 and 2300-foot levels.

Justice.

The north drift, at the 800 foot level, continues showing a very promising face of porphyry, quartz and clay, mixed. Some very fine looking feeders of quartz are met with. The old south mine is showing well.

Silver Hill.

Prospecting the third station level usual, with no important changes to note.

Ophir.

Daily yield, 200 tons of ore. The returns from the ore crushed is giving much better yield than that of August, and the prospects of the mine appear to be steadily on the increase. The ore breasts are looking splendidly, and the prospecting sections of the mine more encouraging. The new pump and incline machinery is fast approaching completion, and everything assuming a shape that augurs well for the future.

Crown Point.

No change in any of the ore breasts on the old upper levels. Prospecting around the mine, showing the 1600 and 1700-foot continuous with very hopeful indications of yet finding good paying bodies of ore. Everything working finely both in and out.

Consolidated Virginia.

Daily yield, 600 tons of ore. The ore breasts throughout the entire mine are yielding splendidly, and have not looked better for the past twelve months than at the present. There is no prospecting being done in the mine at the present. The mills are all kept steadily running, and the prospects are that the yield for the present month will not fall far short of $1,800,000.

Mexican.

Sinking the winze below the 1404-foot level is making good headway, no change in the quality of the quartz encountered.

The Union Pacific and Kansas Pacific Railroad Companies have joined and arranged for the creation of a building separate from the regular halls of the Centennial Exposition for the special purpose of displaying the products of Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming and Utah. A number of Californians headed by William H. Martin, of the California Immigrant Union, are endeavoring to induce the Central Pacific Company to join these corporations and provide space, by enlarging the building, for a full display of products, mineral, agricultural and geological, from the States of California, Nevada and Oregon.

THE WHEEL OF LIFE.

BY OBSERVER.

I stood within the cottage door,
A wheel was sitting near,
A smiling infant turned it round,
Then started back in fear.

Methought that here the wheel of life
Was turned by this fair child,
And Fate the ever varying thread
Upon the spindle plied.

Time comes near the clicking-rod,
Was counting off the chain,
And every month it tied a knot,
And every year a skein.

At first the thread ran white and smooth,
No blot nor wrinkle there,
As innocuous the wheel did turn,
For life's immortal heir.

Soon coarser grew the running thread,
And darker grew the grain,
And passion, with its crimson dye
Began to leave its stain.

And louder still the spindle whirled,
And fast the wheel flew round;
Till Fate the overlying thread
From off the spindle wound!
